📍 Various locations across London and Surrey.

Fire Tech is a UK start-up that has become the leading provider of technology and digital courses and camps for kids aged 9-17. They are helping to prepare young people for the future economy by teaching them coding, robotics, digital design and much more – in an innovative and collaborative environment. They offer courses in central London and the Surrey area.

Fire Tech offers tech education to children from all economic backgrounds. While they believe that their prices reflect good value and a fantastic learning experience, they recognise that for some families the price will be out of reach. In order to make their programmes accessible to as many young people as possible, They have a scholarship fund that provide financial assistance to families that need it.

They also accept childcare vouchers at all locations.
