The Communication Trust

Organisation Details

Description of activity

The Communication Trust is a coalition of more than 50 not-for-profit organisations, who provide support to children and young people with Speech, Language and Communication Needs (SLCN).

The members of the Communication Trust offer a variety of services and information to all families in England. Some services are provided free, while others have a fee. Those with a fee are suitable for families with personal budgets, or can be purchased by schools, the local authority and/or the local NHS clinical commissioning group.

On the Communication Trust's Local Offer page you will find a brief description of the services provided by each organisation, and can click on each one to find out more detail about its services.
